

"The iniquity of slavery"

Resources for the study of the transatlantic slave trade

The transatlantic slave trade: resources for schools

To commemorate the bicentenary of the abolition of the slave trade in 2007, Durham University Library staged a recreation of the iconic image of the slave ship Brookes with the help of over 270 young people from schools across the North East. The canvas used is a fantastic resource that can now be used by schools and community groups wishing to find out more about the transatlantic slave trade and the campaign for its abolition.

If you are studying this topic, why not contact us to see how we can help inspire your students.

Examples of what we can do...

- Interactive workshops featuring our slave ship canvas
- Sessions using our extensive collection of primary sources
- E-learning resources
- Citizenship sessions
- School assemblies

For more details please see www.dur.ac.uk/4schools

