Haringey Council offers this translating and interpreting service to Haringey residents.
We can translate this document into one language per resident ONLY.

As we move towards Black History Month this year, we are all reminded that 2007 takes on a special significance in the British consciousness. We have marked this year 200 years since the British government finally outlawed the trade in African slaves, and in essence, since the start of the modern human rights movement.

As the MP for Tottenham, it has been a pleasure to see Haringey's BHM progress from one year to the next, and I am confident that residents will find the programme for this year informative, thought-provoking and enriching as ever. I look forward to seeing you all there.

David Lammy
Member of Parliament

In consultation with the Black Community in Haringey, the programme for this year's Black History Month includes many events to commemorate the bicentenary of the British Parliamentary Act to abolish the transatlantic slave trade.

It is clear that issues relating to slavery are thoughtfully acknowledged in this programme. As much work still needs to be done to heal the wounds of the past, I am both proud and delighted we are offering this platform for expression.

As Leader of Haringey Council, I celebrate the achievements of our communities. There is no greater reward in public service.

I wish Black History Month in Haringey 2007 every success.

Cllr George Meehan
Leader of Haringey Council

As we mark 200 years since the passing of The Act to abolish the slave trade this year's Black History Month is an opportunity for us here in Haringey to solemnly reflect on the long road that has been travelled in pursuit of justice and affirmation of the fundamental human right that no man, woman or child can be owned by another human being.

It is also a moment for us all to consider the legacy that still persists to this day from this horrific enterprise and to consider how we can redouble our efforts in ensuring true equality for all.

Lynne Featherstone
Member of Parliament

This new community youth-based project funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund will explore the rich contributions made to British heritage by known and unknown people of African/Caribbean descent. The time line will start with ancient Africa, exploring the rich history of Africa to the early beginnings of the Transatlantic slave trade, onto the 1807 Abolition Act of Parliament.

The project will fast forward to the post war era to re-examine the concept of slavery within different political and social contexts from the post-war era up to the present day and beyond.

The themes are:

- Windrush - Streets of Gold (1945-1950s)
- Back To My Roots (1960s)
- Social Uprising and Equality (1970s)
- The Thatcher Years (1980s)
- 'Bling' Culture (1990s →)
- Raising Aspirations - Breaking the Chains

DM Training and Education Services exists to provide high-quality education and training in a variety of contexts, to enable young people from varying backgrounds to improve and develop their life chances.

An exhibition by Anti-Slavery International to take you on a journey from the transatlantic slave trade through to slavery in contemporary society. It also looks at how contemporary forms of slavery have been challenged through popular campaigns and by the development of international standards to prohibit them.

Many people think that slavery no longer exists, yet at least 12 million people live and work in contemporary forms of slavery around the world. This year, the 200th anniversary of the abolition of the Slave Trade, offers an opportunity not only to raise awareness of modern day slavery, but also to redress the legacies of the Transatlantic Slave Trade and acknowledge the achievements of all those who campaigned for its abolition.

For further information please visit www.antislavery.org/2007 and sign the declaration.

This exhibition explores Haringey's own heritage and evidence of local Black presence relating to the slave trade from the 16th century. It acknowledges the significant contribution of the extra-parliamentary popular movement against the trade by local Quakers and others from the 1780s onwards; creating a context for us all to understand and examine the legacy of the slave trade we live with today.

Painting of Lucius and Montague Hare. C1675. The two younger sons of the 2nd Lord Coleraine, who lived at Bruce Castle, the Manor of Tottenham.

Visual Orator® Akosua Bambara presents her thoughtful and intelligent work of jewellery and ceramics. Each piece is created in memory of the African people who suffered and died during the decades of misery of chattel enslavement.

A combination of conflict and beauty, Akosua's work is designed as tactile pieces of art. Some may be worn to promote a gentle healing of the spirit. Her ceramics explore the meaning of symbolism and belief systems, complementing the fine enamelled and pertinent work of her Wall Jewellery®.

She is editor of Freedom Delayed and co-author (with Hilary Beckles), of Trading Souls: Europe's Transatlantic Trade in Africans and Saving Souls: The Struggle to End the Transatlantic Trade in Africans, all published in 2007 to mark the of Bicentenary of the Abolition of the Transatlantic Trade in Africans.

www.untoldlondon.org.uk

London is home to people of every race and faith. More than 200 languages are spoken in Haringey alone, and whilst some cultural groups have been here for centuries, 30% of Londoners today were born abroad.

This website searches for the histories that relate to all the cultures of London. We focus on London museums, but also look at archives, galleries and the history work of communities themselves.

Find history Listings in London, organised by cultural group. Including small venues in the outer boroughs as well as the huge central museums, we find events that you might otherwise miss.

Search Collection information by cultural group. Find a snapshot of what museums have in their permanent displays, and what they keep in store behind the scenes. We also list the collections of some groups who are not museums - especially archives and community group holdings.

Read the News about multicultural history events. Often we'll talk about new exhibitions that are opening, but we also do features on where to find the history of a particular cultural group in the capital.

Explore our Archives – these are still small, but we're gradually adding a representative sample of culturally diverse history events that have taken place in London. We hope they'll provide inspiration for people planning future events, as well as keeping material in the public domain that would otherwise be sitting in a cupboard.

As Mayor of Haringey 2007 it has been a privilege and a humbling experience to undertake so many engagements connected with commemorating the bicentenary of the Act to abolish the transatlantic slave-trade.

In remembering the Act of Parliament we honour those who were enslaved, who stood up and rebelled to bring the slave trade to an end. We acknowledge that the abolition of this trade could only have taken place by the collaboration of all the decent peoples of conscience and goodwill, caught-up in the practice of slavery.

The British Parliamentary Act did not bring about an end to slavery itself. This abhorrent industry still exists in many forms around the world today. In commemorating the passing of the Act of 1807 we in Haringey indicate our acceptance of a continuing responsibility to oppose the enslavement of one human being by another, and so further the healing process.

I am proud to endorse this programme for Black History Month 2007, both as a person with an African-Caribbean-European-American background; and as the borough's first citizen.
