

(Getty Images)

BROMLEY AND THE END OF THE SLAVE TRADE

In May 1787, William Pitt and William Wilberforce met under an oak tree at Pitt's home at Holwood, starting a process that led to his abolition of the slave trade and eventually slavery. This exhibition examines the process and Bromley's role in it.

Throughout this exhibition abolition is used to mean the abolition of the slave trade and emancipation for the abolition of slavery..

