AFRICAN HISTORY SEASON EVENTS - OCTOBER - DECEMBER

'Common Threads' Living in Multi-cultural Oxford.

From the cotton fields of the Americas, to the mills of England 'Common Threads' draws the links to and the legacy of the system of slavery and the slave trade. Slaves sung songs of social commentary, whilst picking cotton, telling of their sorrows and their joys and longed for freedom.

'COMMON THREADS' Living in Multi-cultural Oxfordshire, a legacy of the system of slavery and the slave trade, is an exhibition of textile work by local women representing the different races and cultures, will be exhibited throughout November.

Exhibition

28th October - 1st December

Jacqueline Du Pré Music Buildings

St. Hildas College, Cowley Place, OXFORD

African-Caribbean Women's Arts Collective (AWAC) in collaboration with ACKHI

Stitch 'N' Time'

AWAC through workshops, will reproduce slave quilts as used the underground railroad to communicate routes of safe passage from the southern states to northern states of America, whilst doing so encourage participants to explore the historic context of African textiles and their use as storyboard.

'Ancestral Souls' African Women's Arts Collective (AWAC) will collaborate with African and African Diasporic women to produce 200 doll symbolic representation of African and African Diasporic peoples to commemorate the lives of millions of Africans forcibly transported to the Americas.

The completed dolls will form an exhibition along with other textile and art works throughout the bicentenary.

AFRICAN HISTORY SEASON EVENTS

'Connections'

People & Places

Throughout 2007 ACKHI will research Oxfordshire's links with the system of 'slavery' and the 'slave trade'.

'Connections' will identify and negotiate with local authorities, Oxford University, English Heritage and other institutions to signpost landmarks and develop a trail.

'Out of Africa' will document the African Diasporic and African people's presence in Oxfordshire, highlight their achievements and hold programmes of oral history workshops for people to tell 'Their Stories.'

If you have any information or know of any family, friends or neighbours with connections to Africans or African-Caribbeans (West Indians) or any person with African heritage and you are willing to share your knowledge,
